The committee on taxation and legislation, M. E. Simons, Esq., chairman, reported that the prospects for paving Main street are good. It was stated that if the Sproul Bill passes the Legislature, the present status of the Honesdale-Texas road combination would be changed. When the matter of streets and highways came up, of which committee C. P. Searle, Esq., is chairman, it was stated by the District Attorney that the viewers recently appointed by the Court favored the foot-bridge across the Lackawaxen, and that the view had been approved by the Grand Jury. In 1828 his wife and her three sons crossed the Atlantic (located at Easton, and two years later came to Dreher (then Sterling) township, with a colony that bought a tract of 2,000 acres of land, and when the property was divided Mr. Beehn's maternal grandmother received 100 acres which constitutes the Beehn homestead.

500 EMPLOYEES ADVISE THE ERIE.

Trackwalkers and division superintendents touched elbows yesterday, when the Erie Railroad called a meeting of 500 employees at Pater-son, N. J., for the purpose of obtaining suggestions of the men who fix signals, lay tracks, etc. for the betterment of the road.

The conference was arranged by officials of the company. It was the first time a railroad ever has invited a general discussion of proposed improvements and the outcome is awaited with considerable interest by other Eastern roads.

HOWE SENTENCED

GETS $100 FINE AND COSTS OF PROSECUTION IN WAYNE COUNTY—LIQUOR LICENSES ALL GRANTED BUT THREE.

March term of Wayne county court was convened Monday, at 2 p. m. Judge Alonzo T. Searle presided.

The roll of traverse jurors was called and these were excused: Charles Boos, Texas; Geo. C. Gaylord, Clinton; William S. Hartie, Sr., Palmyra; Alfred F. Kimble, Hawley; J. F. McDonnell, Cherry Ridge; Henry Stengle, Texas; Chas. Scheibert, Dreher.

The following accounts were presented and confirmed nisi:

Accounts in estates of Annetta Shaffer, Lake; Margaret Fasshauer, Texas; Electa K. Bassett, Honesdale; H. K. Stone, Honesdale; George S. Purdy, Honesdale; Porter Kennedy, Mount Pleasant; W. Bruce Keeney, Preston.

Appraisements of $300 were made to widows of S. T. Palmer, Hawley; personal estate; John L. Burcher, Honesdale; personal estate; Andrew Bayer, Paupack; personal estate.

The calendar was called. Judge Searle announced that sickness would prevent Judge Charles B. Staples, Stroudsburg, from presiding at several cases this week, but that Judge Ralph B. Little, Montrose, would come in his place.

It was stated by the Court that the case of Anna May Fives versus the Auto Transportation Company had been settled.

Licenses Granted.

All the applications for liquor licenses, the bonds having been approved, were granted, with the exception of three, against which complaints had been filed. Tuesday, March 21, was set by the Court for the arguing of the complaints against the applications of Frank Mang, Texas; Warner Knapp, Preston; Anthony Yeager, Preston, all of whom asked for hotel licenses. The order set for the hearings on that date is: 9 a. m., Knapp; Yeager; 2 p. m., Mang.

Carl Howe Sentenced.

At 2:50 p. m., District Attorney M. E. Simons moved that Carl Howe be sentenced.

Attorney R. H. Holgate, Esq., Scranton, made an eloquent and impassioned plea for mercy to be shown his client, who was tried and found guilty of a statutory offense, on the charge of Madeline Paterson, La Plume, at a special term of court, February, on a change of venue from Lackawanna county, and recommended by the jury to the mercy of the Court. "The case of Carl Howe," he said, "is without parallel in the history of the criminal jurisdiction of Pennsylvania." He recited the history of the three trials, convictions and recommendations to mercy, how he had in the Courts of Lackawanna, where, according to Holgate, "the extreme mercy of the Court was always twelve years."

The Supreme Court, he said, had thrice reversed the decision of the lower courts. Carl Howe had been compelled however to spend large sums of money in having his case appealed to the higher courts. The printing of the "paper book" alone in the first appeal cost $310. "It has cost Howe every dollar he has to defend himself and he is $1,600 in debt." In conclusion he pleaded for the extension of "the mercy we shall all be compelled to ask when the scenes of this life change."

District Attorney M. E. Simons briefly replied to what he characterized as the eloquent argument by the defendant's attorney. "When a jury of Lackawanna county," he said, "three times decided he was guilty of the crime, and afterwards, he comes over here and gets a lighter verdict, we think the young man is extremely fortunate and the Commonwealth does not ask for the extreme penalty, but joints in the request for mercy."

Judge Searle's Charge.

Before sentencing the defendant, Judge Searle said: "You have been convicted in this court. The jury recommends you to the mercy of the court. We might sentence you to pay all the costs of the three former trials. The Court however does not feel disposed to sentence you to pay all the costs of trials where reversal was had, and we shall not impose them upon you. The sentence of the court is that 'you, Carl Howe, pay the costs of prosecution in Wayne county only, that you pay a $100 fine, and that you give security for the payment of the same within thirty days.'"

The rest of the afternoon session was devoted to the case of the Commonwealth versus Warren Simpson charged with the larceny of a horse. These jurors were selected to try the case: Oliver Howell, Scott; Frank Black, Lake; Henry Knorr, Oregon; Yens Lilholt, Damascus; S. D. Labarr, Preston; Ira E. Bryant, Dyberry; J. W. Hause, Dreher; Robert Hafner, Sterling; H. P. Deck, Honesdale; Geo. Ek, Texas; Leslie Cease, South Canaan; Alonzo Williams, Berlin.

Real Estate News.

Kreitner Bros. have bought the lot on Main and Seventeenth streets from the John Torrey estate. The lot measures 80x150. The terms of the purchase have not been made public.

John Mason, Bethany, sold his farm last week to Mr. Bates, Dyberry, 85 acres for $4,000. Mr. Mason left Monday afternoon for California where he will make his future home.

THE WORLD AT LARGE SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT EVENTS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

THE MEXICAN SITUATION.

According to the announcement of Senator Limantour, Mexican minister of Finance, the withdrawal of the United States warships dispatched to patrol the Mexican coast has been ordered by President Taft. After a conference with Senator Don de la Barra, the Mexican Ambassador to Washington, Senator Limantour announced that the State Department had ordered the withdrawal of all the boats detailed to guard the Mexican coastline. If this is so the Chester and Tacoma, the vessels now there will depart after coaling at Mexican ports.

According to a statement made by Major General Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the Army, the troops have not massed on the Mexican frontier. San Antonio, where 20,000 are now assembling, is far from the frontier and the movement of troops there has nothing to do with the Mexican situation. General Wood further says that he does not believe there will be any movement of our troops into Mexico and that there can be no excuse for intervention unless the Mexican Government proves negligent in protecting the persons or property of foreign residents. General Wood believes that there are no conditions now existing to warrant the American forces crossing the border.

General Wood has notified that the mobilization of the troops has been accomplished and so far the President has issued no new orders. There are no signs of making the camp at San Antonio a permanent one and it is learned on good authority that the Mexican invasion will take place only as a last resort.

From all accounts it would seem that the sole purpose of patrolling the border is to preserve a strict neutrality and that if it should become necessary to enter Mexico the soldiers would remain there only until the results of election should be fully obtainable.

It is learned that President Diaz is in a serious condition despite reports from Mexican sources that he is in good health. It is said that the ailment with which Diaz is afflicted is arterial sclerosis. This disease is likely to result fatally at any time. In the event of the death of President Diaz, President Taft is assured that the succession has been arranged for and that the new President of Mexico will be a man who is capable of meeting and carrying out all of Mexico's obligations.

THE FEDERAL TAX AND THE CORPORATIONS.

The Supreme Court of the United States has settled a controversy which has waged continuously ever since President Taft first suggested the enactment of the corporation tax provisions of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill when it unanimously declared these provisions constitutional.

The effect of these provisions will be to save to the government $27,000,000 taxes annually. Corporation lawyers state that it will mean a victory to the Government in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases. The decision is generally supposed to show a tendency towards the progressive and officials are greatly pleased greatly pleased with it. It is also regarded, however, as another blow to business interests and as a step towards governmental regulation of corporations.

The decision was announced by Justice Day, appointed to the Supreme Court from Ohio in 1903. He used an elaborate statement approximating 19,000 words which he referred to as he explained the position orally to the bar.

Justice Day said that the tax was not a direct tax on the ownership of property but an excise tax on the doing of corporate business. A plan to raise part of the revenue to be used for running the government was originated by President Taft towards the imposing of a corporation tax. It is supposed that he made a rough draft of the proposed law and asked the department of justice to perfect it.

PROPOSED INCREASE OF STATE REVENUE.

Bills, providing various forms of taxation for public improvements, to the extent of twenty-nine resolutions framed as the result of the work of the State Revenue Commission were introduced in the Legislature by Senator Nichol McNichol and Representatives Woodward and Howard.

The design of these measures is to revise the revenue laws of the state and to produce more funds for public improvements and State requirements. One of the recommendations was the abolishment of the State Board of Charities. According to Senator McNichol, if all the bills become laws, the State Revenues will be increased between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 a year.

SETTLEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE DEADLOCK IN NEW YORK EXPECTED.

Mayor Gaynor and Tammany Hall leader Charles F. Murphy have gone to Albany to confer with Governor Dix in a final endeavor to settle the senatorial controversy. There was a report about the Capitol that William F. Sheehan had forwarded his letter of withdrawal to Mr. Murphy. It could not be learned whether the Tammany leader would make use of the letter at this time or await developments.

The governor is anxious to settle the matter as soon as possible and he does not intend to discuss anything but the Senatorship. Both Mayor Gaynor and Governor Dix are firmly convinced of the impossibility of electing Sheehan and that for the good of the party he should either be dropped or withdraw of his own accord.

Mr. Sheehan said that he had not been invited to Albany to the conference and would not discuss the matter in any way.

NAVY INCREASE MAY END IN REVOLUTION.

Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary and leader of the House of Commons in the absence of Premier Asquith has made a statement in which he declares that the growth of the fleets of the foremost powers of the world is bound to end in an international revolution.

Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty, said that the size of the British navy is governed by the size of the German navy and that in England would have thirty Dreadnaughts to Germany's twenty. He did not think that considering the size of the two countries that this was an unreasonable margin.

He said that there would positively be no reduction in the navy until the Government was informed as to the development of foreign navies. He declared it as absolutely necessary that under all circumstances the navy should be secure and that Great Britain should have the freedom of the seas.

The leader referred to President Taft's speech on arbitration as bold, courageous, and pregnant with consequences. He said: "Such a statement should not go without response. We should be delighted to have such a proposal made to us. We should feel that it was something so momentous and so far-reaching in its possible consequences that it would require not only the signature of both governments, but the deliberate and decided sanction of Parliament. That, I believe, would be given."

NEWARK MAN ARRESTED

Frank Brown, a travelling peddler who disposed of cheap jewelry stones, razors, watch chains and guards in Honesdale, Thursday, and in doing so imbibed to such an extent that he was arrested about half-past five o'clock Friday afternoon in one of the up-town restaurants by Officer John Canivan, and taken to the "coop" under the City Hall. He became so noisy that he was transferred that night to the county jail, as Officer Canivan didn't think it was safe to leave him in his underground cell over night.

At the hearing before Mayor Kuhlback Friday Brown gave his age as 34, his residence as Newark, N. J., and stated that he was married but didn't live with his wife. He was charged with vagrancy, drunkenness and disorderly conduct by Officer John Canivan. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5, $4 costs or undergo thirty days' hard labor on the streets. An inventory of his possessions, when arrested, was taken. They consisted of four watches, six pair glasses, $1.05 in money and a pen knife. The Mayor agreed to accept the "inventory" in lieu of the cash, and gave him ten days in which to redeem it. Brown left Saturday afternoon for Carbondale. He came to Honesdale from Stroudsburg by way of Moscow and Lake Ariel. He tried to sell his wares in the hotels and pool rooms, in order to raise enough money, so he claimed, to buy shoes.

Singular, hobble; plural, harem.

Death of Mrs. John Cole.

Mrs. Emma E., wife of John N. Cole, died of pneumonia at her home in Lookout, Wednesday, March 8, aged 75 years, being born February, 1854, in Pike county. She was a daughter of the late William Holbert and Emma Poole. The deceased was a devout member of the Methodist church. LIFE IN FLORIDA

Mrs. G. C. Abraham On Life in Orange City.

INTERESTING FACTS AND FIGURES—REAL ESTATE—VEGETABLES—ROADS—SUNRISE—BIRDS, BEASTS AND FLOWERS.

I had planned to write this time about Florida as "the land of flowers," but you know the maxim,—"The best laid plans o' mice and men," etc.

The orange trees were in full bloom, filling the air with their fragrances, the roses were trying to out-rival each other in beauty, none of which is more lovely than the wild Cherokee rose with its dark green waxy leaves, trailing branches and pure white blossoms. The lantana, phlox, oleander, cactus all grow wild here, and were just beginning to give color to the landscape, when Jack Frost came blighting all our budding aspirations. This was Florida's part of the blizzard which you people experienced about the twentieth of February. The orange groves had to be fired and even then the young growth was badly frosted, damaging next year's crop considerably.

The Spanish Bayonet.

I would like to tell you of one plant because of its name. It is the Spanish Bayonet, so called because of its leaves which resemble a bayonet. They are about two feet long, stiff, with points as sharp as a needle. It is said that the Spaniards used to dip these points in poison and use them as weapons of warfare. This has a stalk of waxy white blossoms the seed pods of which resemble a stem of bananas except that they are smaller and the pods are dark. These pods are filled with a jelly-like substance which contains a great number of flat, black seeds which are used for making chains. These chains are very popular for Florida souvenirs.

While we are somewhat disappointed about seeing Florida in her summer dress still there are so many things of interest we have no time for regret.

Roads Good and Bad.

Our visit to Blue Spring I think will be of interest to you. This was about a three-mile walk out from our town. I have told you of the hard surfaced shell roads. The main thoroughfares are mostly of this sort, and there are many sand roads which are very hard to travel. In order to overcome this many of the drives are thickly strewn with needles from the long-leaf pine which make a firm road that is good even for autoing. We had a mile of pine needles at the beginning of our walk then we came to the road which stretched away as far as we could see, a wide white strip of sand overarched with green which seemed to meet at the end. It was a pretty sight and made us wish for our cameras. This we followed until we came to the jungle trail which soon led us to where the smell of sulphur greeted our nostrils and the beautiful Blue Spring our vision. (I will not tell you of the flat headed adder we killed on our way for fear of marring the beauty of the picture). This great spring boils right up out of the ground in such a quantity that it forms a river which flows away to the St. Johns. The water is blue and clear, tastes of sulphur and is a little salty.

We remained here for some time watching the water boil up with such force as to raise it quite a bit above the level. It seemed marvelous! Then we discovered a lot of clamorous orange banks and after watching the dart about for a time we again struck the jungle trail, following the stream to where it empties in the St. John River. Standing on the bank of this river one can see a distinct color line where the blue water form the spring meets the clear water of the St. John's.

It was now nearly train time and we had yet to walk about half a mile through a deep sand road to Orange City Junction. This changed poetry into prose for a short time. It was nearly noon when our party boarded the train for home—hot and tired but well satisfied with our trip. Memory will soon obliterate the pros but the white sand road—the jungle trail and the beautiful Blue Spring, looking like a gem in a beautiful setting, will always remain.

Our next excursion was to Sanford or Celery City, a thriving little town of about three thousand inhabitants. The trip up the St. John's River and the celery fields were the chief attractions. It was necessary to get an early start in order to drive to Blue Spring Landing in time for the boat which was due at half past six o'clock. It was a little hard to leave the arms of Morpheus at the early hour of five, but the lovely cool road and the sunrise more than compensated us for so small a sacrifice.

Sunrise in Florida!

I wish I could describe a Florida sunrise! The sun seems to come up like a real ball of fire and all at once it is full day. Our sunsets are the same—we look out and see that great ball of fire just above the tree tops—as we gaze it drops down, down, down and it is night. No twilight—no "rosy fingered morn," just a great, glorious ball of fire. I fail to find words to describe it.

We reached the dock on time but our boat failed to put in an appearance, until three hours later. We did not mind the delay, however, there is always enough of interest to

HAPPENINGS IN HAWLEY!

INTERESTING BUDGET OF EVENTS IN OUR FLOURISHING SISTER BOROUGH.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

HAWLEY, Pa., March 14.—F. J. Denison returned home Thursday from Hancock, N. Y., where he attended the funeral of his friend, Thomas Keery. Mr. Keery died in New York where he was preparing for a trip with his family to Bermuda. He was president of the First National Bank of Hancock and also engaged in the manufacturing of wood acid. Mr. Denison moved from Hancock to Hawley recently. He owns a saw-mill and planning mill at Hancock. He says that he is making an effort to dispose of these properties but if not sold in a short time he will move them to Hawley.

The worthy scribe of the Independent on his pedestrian trip through Hawley and describing some of the older business establishment of the town evidently turned and wended his way down Keyatone street. Had he proceeded North on Main avenue he would have found many young businesses lately started by some of our energetic and enterprising young men. On the left corner he could have seen in the old store building where the late Charles Taft kept a general store for many years and later occupied by Lot Atkinson, also deceased, for a hardware store. This three-year-old business is conducted by George S. Thompson who carries a fine stock of groceries and whose delivery wagon is seen leaving the store twice a day.

On the opposite corner in the Ames store building, lately fitted up with complete glass front, is young Joseph Skier who not many years ago travelled from house to house with a pack on his back. His business is seven years old. He handles clothing. A little farther on is the jewelry store of Harry Ludwig and Ray Balsen two young men who launched into the business only three weeks ago. They purchased the stock of Carl Obesie who did business there several years. They have renovated the room and goods in such fine order that the place is hardly recognized and are now ready to serve the customer. Next corner Ed. Treux, a young man formerly from Peckville, who purchased the barber shop of C. S. Schardt and took possession on March 1. He expects to do a good business; also Peter Unger who has been an efficient clerk for Thomas Mangan for several years, but recently purchased the business of Harry J. Lobb. He will resign his present position on April 1 and devote his entire time to that business. His sister, Barbara, now has charge.

And he also could have seen on this avenue the Hawley Bank, a two months' old institution, with its tag lifted to the breeze and its doors open for business from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

We were delighted in reading Mr. Woodward's glowing description of "Sweet Hawley," also his prophecy that the hillsides would be dotted with cottages, etc., and of its production of priests and 117 widows, its beautiful hills and all of these things. To read thus of Hawley one feels like wishing—that when I die I can't get to heaven that I may at least get as far as Hawley.

The Town Council met last Monday evening and organized for the year by electing the following officers: P. H. Kearney, president; E. J. Richardson, secretary; M. J. McAndrew, treasurer. The committees appointed were: Street, Henry Bried, John Conkling, and Louis Geisler; ordinance, A. J. Kerber and C. P. Well.

Sunday evening, in the Methodist church, Rev. B. P. Ripley delivered a sermon to the Odd Fellows' Fraternity and Order of the Rebekahs, on "Friendship and True Brotherhood." The Orders were well represented. The pastor's discourse was intensely interesting and commanded the closest attention throughout. He spoke of the great need of the principle of Odd Fellowship being lived up to in our daily intercourse with one another, and that true friendship and love is spiritual. One could not imagine a church without these virtues which tend to bring one into fellowship with Christ who said "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The music for the evening was fine. Miss Mae Killam sang a solo which was greatly appreciated.

Peter Cron has moved from Tafton into one of O'Conner's houses at the Eddy.

On March 30 the Ladies' Aid of the German Lutheran church will hold a "Koffee Klotch" in the basement of the church. All are invited to attend.

Surveyor Isaac Sandcock and assistants was surveying property on the East Side of the Paupack river Saturday. The Paupack Power company has also purchased of Henry Eck ten acres in Palmyra township, Pike county. Consideration $1,000.

J. D. Putell and C. E. Collins, Scranton, registered at the Park View Hotel, Saturday.

Howard Pennell, an employe of the Glass factory, met with a painful accident last week. A spring in the wheel of the car which he was using slipped out, letting the cars against him with great force. He now has a swollen jaw, minus two teeth.

Mark Simons, formerly of Sterling, now of Elgin, Ill., was in town last week. He called on the writer here for a short chat of boyhood
